Tomb robbing in ancient Egypt was recognized as a serious problem as early as the Early Dynastic Period (c. 3150 - c. 2613 BCE) in the construction of the pyramid complex of Djoser (c. 2670 BCE). The burial chamber was purposefully located, and the chambers and hallways of the tomb filled with debris, to prevent theft, but even so, the tomb was broken into and looted; even the king's mummy was taken.

Ancient Egyptian tombs are one of the most common examples of tomb or grave robbery. Most of the tombs in Egypt's Valley of the Kings were robbed within one hundred years of their sealing (including the tomb of the famous King Tutankhamen, which was raided at least twice before it was discovered in 1922).

Grave robbery - Wikipedia

to ancient lore, King Khufufull locked his tomb from the inside to protect it from grave robbers." At the words grave robbers, Stanley shivered and broke into goose disks. (Since his encounter with the bulletin board, Stanley's goose bumps now came up as flat as the rest of him, more like tiny disks than bumps.
